

CRDAMC Commander Colonel Daniel J. Moore

Colonel Daniel Moore enlisted as an optometry/ophthalmology technician and served in 1st Armored Division's main medical company during the Gulf War. After a short break in service, Colonel Moore received a commission as a Medical Services Corps Officer from the University of South Florida. He subsequently completed the Officer Basic Course followed by flight school. Colonel Moore holds a Master of Arts in International Relations from Troy University and a Masters of Strategic Studies from the Army War College.

His previous assignments include: Medical Evacuation Pilot, Fort Wainwright, Alaska; Operations Officer, Medical Evacuation Pilot, Fort Carson, Colorado; Division Evacuation Officer, 2nd Infantry Division; MEDEVAC Doctrine Course Director, Fort Rucker; Current Operations Officer, 44th Medical Command; Operation Iraq Freedom; Commander, Cajun Dustoff, Fort Polk; Chief of Plans, 1st Medical Brigade; Task Force Med, Operation Enduring Freedom; HQDA Evacuation Officer and Deputy Chief of Force Management, Office of the Surgeon General; Commander, 1-228th Aviation Regiment, Honduras. Executive Officer, 1st Medical Brigade; Commander, 28th Combat Support Hospital/16th Hospital Center, Fort Bragg; Chief of Plans, Office of the Surgeon General.

He is also a graduate of Army Medical Department Officer Basic and Advanced Course, U.S. Army Command, Army Flight School, General Staff College, and the U.S. Army War College.

His awards and decorations include the Legion of Merit, Bronze Star Medal (one oak leaf cluster), Meritorious Service Medal (five oak leaf clusters), Army Commendation Medal (eight oak leaf clusters), Operation Iraqi Freedom Campaign Medal, Operation Enduring Freedom Campaign Medal, Senior Aviator Badge, Expert Field Medic Badge, Parachutist's Badge, and the Air Assault Badge.

